FIorenZO NADA - {BRUNO NADA}

Bruno Nada is the son of a vine-grower who, typical of his generation, initially had little interest in farming and left home to study, first in Turin, then in Asti and eventually wound up as a teacher in the Hotel Institute of Barolo. While his interest in farming may not have been extraordinary, his interest in wine was, and he constantly took courses and read books in an attempt to further his knowledge in the field. The more he studied, the more he developed a passion for his home, the Cascina Rombone, near Treiso in the southern reaches of the Barbaresco region.

Cascina Rombone was originally the core of a large property of vineyards owned by Carlo Nada, which was divided among his four sons in the 1950's. The actual cascina and the vineyards on what is now regarded as the crus of "Rombone" and "Manzola" were left to his youngest son Fiorenzo, Bruno's father, who continued to till the land, selling the fruit off to local wineries. In 1982, Bruno finally proposed to his father that they build a cellar and begin producing and bottling their own wine. His sole response was "Pruvuma," local dialect for "Let's try".

The Fiorenzo Nada winery today comprises the same seven hectares that Fiorenzo had worked this entire life and the wines produced are only made from the fruit of these vineyards. Fiorenzo has instilled in his son and tremendous respect for the traditions of the past, yet Bruno is always tinkering and trying to find ways to improve his wines. To this end he relies on the expert advice of an old friend, the enologist Giuseppe Caviola. Mr. Caviola has since become regarded as one of the leading enologists in all of Italy.

Fiorenzo and Bruno's range of wines toe the line between tradition and innovation. The basic Barbaresco is only aged in large cask and shows the classic restraint and elegance of the traditional style, while the Barbaresco "Rombone" and the barbera and nebbiolo blend called "Seifile" show the sheen of new oak without overwhelming the Rombone characteristics. Dolcetto has a long history in the Treiso commune, as much of the terrain is at a higher altitude than that which the nebbiolo vine prefers and the Nada's example of this wine is superb. Few years ago they have also added Barbera, and Nebbiolo Langhe to their range of wines.

The Nada property was once one of the most important properties in the commune of Treiso, but was divided among four sons by Carlo Nada, Bruno's grandfather.

Treiso was once regarded as being too high in altitude for the nebbiolo grape, and therefore dolcetto has become a bit of a local specialty as well.

The Fiorenzo Nada winery is considered one of the most respected in the commune of Treiso. The harvesting is made by hand.

WINES	CLASSIFICATION - FERMENTATION & AGING	GRAPES	AVG. PROD.
BARBARESCO - DOCG Min. 13.0% alc/vol	BARBARESCO DOCG The grapes, from five vineyards within the Rombone and Manzola crus, are destemmed and crushed prior to 10-12 days in stainless steel tanks of fermentation and maceration at a maximum temperature of 30°C (86°F). After the malolactic fermentation has completed, the wine is racked into 25hl oak casks where it ages for 18 months, followed by another 12 in the bottle.	Nebbiolo 100%	10,000 bottles
BARBARESCO ROMBONE DOCG Min. 13.5% alc/vol	BARBARESCO DOCG Harvested from 40 year-old vines within the Rombone cru, the alcoholic fermentation takes place in temperature controlled, stainless steel tanks for ten-twelve days. For the malolactic fermentation, the wine is transferred into French barriques (Allier & Tronçais), mostly new, where it then continues to age for another 16-18 months. The wine is put to market after an additional 14 months of bottle aging.	Nebbiolo 100%	4,000 btls
"SEIFILE" Min. 13.5% alc/vol The name comes from the 6 rows (sei file) where the grapes were grown.	LANGHE ROSSO DOC The grapes are harvested from very old barbera and nebbiolo vines. They are crushed separately, first the barbera and subsequently the nebbiolo. Separate alcoholic fermentation in temperature controlled stainless steel tanks. The wines are blended in French wood barriques (Allier & Tronçais) [mostly new] where the malolactic fermentation takes place and where they age for about 16 months followed by 14 months in bottle.	Barbera 70-80% Nebbiolo 30-20%	3,000 btls Produced since 1988 and at the same production quantity since 1993.
DOLCETTO D'ALBA DOC Min. 12.5%	DOLCETTO D'ALBA DOC The dolcetto grapes are harvested from a 1.75 hectares parcel of densely planted vines in the Rombone vineyard. The grapes are crushed and a temperature-controlled fermentation for 6-8 days, followed by the malolactic fermentation all takes place in stainless steel tanks where it will continue to rest for another 8 months, followed by three more in the bottle.	Dolcetto 100%	10,000 btls
BARBERA D'ALBA DOC Min. 12.5%	BARBERA D'ALBA DOC Barbera grapes from vines planted in 1997 in the Rombone cru are harvested by hand, crushed and fermented for 8-10 days in stainless steel tanks where the malolactic fermentation also takes place. ## 2007 Fiorenzo Nada Barbaresco Manzola

Wine Advocate # 193 Feb 2011	Antonio Galloni	91	Drink: 2014 - 2024	$39 (39)

Nada's 2007 Barbaresco Manzola is surprisingly reticent at the outset. With time in the glass the wine opens up to reveal generous red berries, flowers, licorice and minerals. The medium-bodied Barbaresco reconciles the warm, radiant personality of the vintage with a classic, structured frame. A mineral-laced finish rounds things out nicely. Anticipated maturity: 2014-2024.

Wine Advocate # 193 Feb 2011	Antonio Galloni	93	Drink: 2014 - 2024	$50 (50)

The 2007 Barbaresco Rombone offers up rich, textured layers of dark fruit, sweet spices, menthol and black cherries. It is a decidedly inward yet sensual, mysterious wine that only shows a fraction of its ultimate potential. With time, the tannins soften a touch, revealing an expressive core of fruit and a creamy, voluptuous finish. The French oak seems better balanced in this vintage than has sometimes been the case. Anticipated maturity: 2014-2024.

The 2008 Langhe Rosso Seifile is especially sleek and refined in this vintage, reflecting the personality of the year. Ripe, silky tannins support an expressive core of dark red plums, menthol, leather and spices in this polished red. The 2008 is a restrained Seifile, but it works. A subtle, understated finish rounds out this stylish old-vine Barbera/Nebbiolo blend. Anticipated maturity: 2016-2026.
